LINE

Mogens Lassen designed throughout his entire life and could never stop working on pieces he had already completed. In 1983 he reapproached his geometric Kubus candleholders with the result being Line. The two candleholders form a single line to create an architectural look that fits perfectly with contemporary minimalism.

MATERIAL
Lacquered metal in black or white, nickel-plated metal, copper-plated metal or brass-plated metal

MAINTENANCE

The Kubus & Line candleholders and Kubus Bowls in metal are hand-polished, therefore the surfaces of each product will not be identical. Nickel, copper and brass are materials that patinate which means that the surface of the products will gradually change over time. If needed, nickel and copper can be polished with a suitable polishing liquid. Brass however should NOT be polished.
